OBITUARY.

In the passing of William Alfred Rose, Napanee has lost one of its best known and esteemed citizens. Mr. Rose was born in Richmond in 1842, and spent nearly all his days in this vicinity. He was the son of the late Archibald and Mary Rose. He was married to Nancy, daughter of the late Andrew Fraser. Mr. Rose grew up on the farm like many Canadians of his time and his early experience in farm life gave him a good strong frame and an ability to adapt himself to the various offices to which he was called in after life. From the farm he went into business and for a number of years he conducted business in Napanee. Subsequently he was appointed Inspector for Lennox and was acknowledged one of the most prudent, careful and efficient officers in that department that the Government had given these counties. Through his life he has been an ardent Temperance Advocate and by his departure the Temperance and Moral Reform people have lost a valuable reliable worker. He was anxious for the moral uplift of the youth of his town. Mr. Rose was a quiet, retiring man, gentle and kind in his manner.

If "The greatest thing a man can do for his Heavenly Father is to be kind to some of his other children" then he did great things. He was a man of deep convictions and on all moral questions no one doubted on which side he stood. He seemed always to endeavor to be a little better than his word and a little more generous than his promise and a little larger in deed than in speech. He was a member in full standing in Trinity Church. In all his illness he never murmured, he had committed all to the care of his Heavenly Father and was waiting patiently until his change should come.

After a long and wearisome illness he passed quietly to his rest on May 12th, leaving behind for the comfort

MILLINERY

We are opening to-day a choice lot of New Millinery suitable for spring and summer.

The artistic note is strongly pronounced in most of the hats and there are very few, if any, shapes which are too extreme to be generally becoming and to appeal to the taste of the most discriminating wearer.

The use of Taffeta and Moire in both piece goods and ribbon has certainly been revived to greater honors than ever before, they are shown in all colors.

The underbrim trimming is a new feature of Flowers, Osprey, Smart Feather Mounts, Stick-Ups and Wing Trimings, all being considered very good.

We would also draw your attention to our Children's Hats.

Lovely New Blouses in sizes from 34 to 42. Come and see them.

THE EARLY FLY.

The early fly is here; you see him lying near; so take your stand club in hand, and soak him in ear. The early flies are worst of the breed accursed; for they'll rise to countless flies which can be dispersed. One active April unless you make it die, will bring you meat to chew, and spoil milk and pie. So, like the Maid of the Lake, arise in helm and sark, and the flies between the eyes, from light until dark. Thus serve your land, a swatter in your hand,
then your name in Hall of fame, sculptured stone will stand. There better plan to help your fellow men; a peril die with dying flies, so kill them while you can. Just so kill the brutes, the method little ones; one takes an axe and breaks backs; one takes his gun and backs. I know one one earnest gink drowns his flies in ink; some boil their flies in oil—a first-scheme, I think. But any plan do, just so you kill a few, each day, so slay and slay, with one high and true.

FOUND DEAD IN BARN AT SHANNONVILLE.

On Saturday afternoon last the village of Shannonville was thrown into a fury of excitement by the discovery of the body of a man in the loft of the shed. It was the corpse of David Albert Connell, aged 50 years.

On Friday last Connell was last seen alive. On Saturday afternoon Sidney Fitzgerald heard a horse neighing in the shed and investigating found that it was hungry. Looking up aloft, for there was not much above the rafters, he saw a body and found it to be that of Connell. He was startled and called in the neighbors. Dr. Moore, coroner, was called.

Saturday evening a jury was sworn in and an inquest opened. Mr. P. J.
M. Anderson, representing the crown.
The circumstances at first looked suspicious. In a notebook covered with a stone or brick in the shed was some writing, apparently referring to his illness or coming death.

Connell lived on the second concession of Thurlow between Belleville and Shannonville. He drove to the latter place on Friday and put his horse in a barn which he owned.
Evidently for the sake of rest or feeling ill, he climbed up a board (for there was no ladder) up to the loft and there died.

A postmortem later revealed that the deceased had had his stomach or bowels perforated. This would result in death.

It is suggested that in his illness if the note was then written he may have scribbled the communication, hardly knowing what he was doing and that the climb in the loft brought about his death.

He had been troubled with a stomach growth for a couple of years it said.

He was about 50 years of age and leaves a widow and son. Constable Connell of Point Anne is a brother.

A ten cent package of Wallace's hat cleaner will make your old straw hat like new, also on Panama hats.

Huerta Will Quit in Order to Facilitate a Settlement.

Diplomatic Mission In Washington Has Received News That Gen. Huerta Has So Advised His Delegates to the Mediation Conference at Niagara Falls—Will Do It On Bidding of the "A. B. C." En-

NEW YORK, May 19.—A diplomatic mission in Washington has received from a corresponding mission accredited to Mexico advises Gen. Huerta has authorized his gates to the Niagara Falls, Ont., conference to promise his resignation should circumstances make that render necessary to a settlement the difficulties. It is understood however, that Gen. Huerta instructed his representatives to make this offer only as a last resort, and to i upon important conditions. These conditions are briefly summarized a reservation to Gen. Huerta of voice in the naming of his successor to an American loan to Mexico of $000,000, and a 99-year lease of dales Bay for naval target pr at an annual rental of $1,000 gold.

This information has caused a deal of speculation in Washington. It follows information of a somewhat similar character known to have received — probably from the source—a week ago. That information was that President Huerta would resign in obedience to any demands from the United States, that if the "A. B. C." diplomats him that his retirement was necessary to a settlement of Mexican tresses and asked him to retire do so.

There is some ground for the belief that the new decision of President Huerta, if correctly reported, the diplomatic correspondent in Mexico, was reached subsequent to departure of his ambassadors to the United States. It is not impossible that the fall of Tampico had something to do with it. Looking back now, it seems likely that the postponement of the Niagara conference for two days grew out of this ch

Official confirmation of this interesting and important story, however, is lacking at the State Department. Mr. Bryan said yesterday afternoon that he had heard nothing of it. The Huertista delegates had informed him of no such authority in their part, he said, and he sees to think that he would have informed if the report was true. Other quarters, however, with particularly good opportunities for knowledge of the mental attitude of principals in the Mexican drama said that the report on its was not unlikely.

VILLAGE IS FIRE-SWEPT

Portage du Port, Que., L'ses Whole Business Section.

Part of Residential District of Community Is Devastated With a Total Loss of Over One Hundred Thousand Dollars — Homeless Have Been Given Accommodation In Neighboring Villages.

OTTAWA, May 19.— Practically the whole of the business section and part of the residential area of the Village of Portage du Port, Que., which is about 50 miles from Ottawa, on the Ottawa river, and has a population of nearly 500, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. In about two hours a property loss of $100,000 had been sustained and many people had been made homeless. How much of the loss is covered by insurance and other particulars, could not be secured last night owing to the telephone and telegraph equipments being burned out. As nearly as could be learned 18 business places and 17 residences were totally destroyed.

The fire, it is said, started in a sample room at Dolan's Hotel, about two o'clock. A few minutes later the building was a mass of flames and the village being without any fire-fighting apparatus, the fire spread rapidly to adjoining buildings, and in two hours it had wiped out the whole of the business section, without even giving time to the occupants to save any of their personal effects. Some had narrow escapes from injury. A high wind was blowing, which helped to spread the fire. Most of the buildings burned were of wood construction. Some, however, were fairly substantial places of brick and stone.

Gerald Brabazon, M.P. for Pontiac, who had his home in the village, heard last night that his house was not burned.

The people who were rendered homeless were offered accommodation by more fortunate neighbors in the village, also by people in Shawville, Campbell's Bay, Hailey's Station, Renfrew and other neighboring towns and villages.

Convict Reid was the former constable who was sentenced to serve seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for his connection with the escape of Krafchenko from the Winnipeg Jail.

Convict Hawkins was a 20-year man, who last summer escaped from the penitentiary, only to be caught the same afternoon. Reid had both legs and one arm broken, besides sustaining internal injuries, while Hawkins had one arm broken and injuries to the chest, caused by the falling of a heavy timber upon it. The convicts were attended by Prison Surgeon McGuire, and the Warden also sent to Winnipeg for Dr. Moody.

TRAFFIC IN TITLES.

Germany Has a Busy Trade Alleges Socialist Deputy.

BERLIN, May 19.—Continuing his revelations, begun in the Reichstag last week, in regard to corruption in the German army, the well-known Socialist Deputy, Dr. Leibknecht, alleges in yesterday's Vorwärts that the lately deceased Gen. Von Lindenau, military governor of Metz, died bankrupt, owing to 101 creditors claims ranging from $1.75 to $37,500.

The gravest charge against the dead officer was that he was accustomed to obtain money by trafficking in decorations and titles. Dr. Leibknecht reproduces an alleged copy of a letter in which Gen. Von Lindenau acknowledged the receipt of several thousand marks, which were to be considered as having been "paid back" when the furnisher of funds had, "through the grace of the Kaiser," become a Prussian professor of medicine.

Gen. Von Lindenau was regarded as a brilliant officer.

The prisoner had previously been arrested on a trivial charge and was acquitted. He asked on that occasion to be deported, but was told to go to work. With a view to securing a free passage home to England, he adopted militant tactics, breaking windows and doing damage amounting to $300. He will probably be deported by the Government when his sentence expires.

SLEEP-WALKING HIS PLEA.

Youth Advances Somnambulism as Defence For Murder.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Wm. Keith, on trial here for the murder of Walter Paul, made a plea of "somnambulistic insanity," through his attorneys.

Keith contends that he dreamed he entered a saloon and sent for Paul; that he dreamed he drew a revolver and said: "You ruined one family, but you will never ruin another," and that he dreamed he fired and Paul fell dead. In fact, everything appears to have been a dream except the revolver, the bullet in the victim's body and the report of the coroner's jury.

Investigation is alleged to have shown that in Alabama Keith and his people were known as "sleep walkers."

Dark Horse In Ipswich.

LONDON, May 19.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Polling takes place on Saturday in Ipswich. To the surprise and disgust equally of the Unionist and Liberal candidates, a third warrior has appeared suddenly. Scurr to wit, who is vaguely described by his backers as the rebel candidate. Local Laborites don't own him. The general supposition is that if he really goes to the poll he won't secure above a hundred votes.

A fourth candidate is even talked about, a dissenting minister having expressed his willingness to stand on the modest program, "The Democratization of Europe."

Hold Smuggled Chinese.

PATERSON, N.J., May 19.—The local police, on information received from the Department of Commerce and Labor, held a Lackawanna Railroad passenger train here Sunday night and took off five Chinese bound for New York, and who, it is claimed, had been smuggled into the United States from Canada. The prisoners will be held for 10 days to give the Federal authorities a chance to make a full investigation. It is claimed the men were smuggled across the Niagara river to Buffalo, and there boarded the train from which they were taken.

PROTECTING DYNAMITE.

Cobalt Miners Are Afraid of Forest Fire Catastrophes.

COBALT, May 19.—All day Sunday wagons were busy moving dynamite from an old magazine belonging to a powder company, as bush fires were raging in the vicinity. In this magazine, which is situated on the old Silver Queen property, there was stored 290 cases of dynamite, or approximately seven tons. Late on Sunday night this magazine was burned down, but by that time all the powder was in a place of safety. The magazine was situated only about a mile from the town.

Bush fires are raging round Cobalt, but damage to property has so far been light.

Englehart in Darkness.

ENGLEHART, May 19.—A bush fire between here and Charlton Sunday afternoon destroyed nearly two miles of electric light poles, leaving both towns in darkness Sunday night. If dry weather continues another week there are certain to be extensive bush fires. Yesterday smoke in three different directions indicated as many forest fires.

MISSING AFFIDAVITS.

Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann Leave Other People to Swear as to Profit-making on Canadian Northern Contracts.

Mackenzie and Mann have been not merely owners of the Canadian Northern Railway. They have also been contractors engaged in the actual construction of the road. Mackenzie and Mann, as owners of the company, have awarded to Mackenzie and Mann as contractors the job of building hundreds of miles of railway. This fact has been cited by critics of the Borden proposal to grant further assistance to the Canadian Northern in the form of a bond guarantee of $45,000,000 and it has been charged that undue profits have been made by Mackenzie and Mann, owners of the Canadian Northern.

In defending their guarantee proposals, however, Premier Borden and his colleagues have declared that Mackenzie and Mann did not profit unduly from construction contracts. They have gone further than this and have asked the people of Canada to accept the remarkable statement that Mackenzie and Mann made never a dollar out of Canadian Northern contracts.

In support of this statement the Ministers have submitted certain affidavits. One affidavit was made by Mr. A. J. Mitchell, comptroller of the Canadian Northern. He swears that to the best of his knowledge Mackenzie and Mann have made no money out of Canadian Northern construction contracts. Another affidavit was made by Messrs. A. J. Mann, A. Mackenzie, and Charles Cummings, officers of the Northern Construction Company. They swear that Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann were not interested in the construction company and made no profits from its operations.

This is the proof which the Government offers of the statement that Mackenzie and Mann made no profits from the $223,000,000 or so of contracts they awarded themselves.

The navy were ordered to cruise around the island to check certain expected activities of the men opposed to Home Rule. Inevitably these things aroused a storm of passion. The army and the navy have been brought into a bitter party question of internal policy in the United Kingdom.

Among Canadians, as among people of the United Kingdom, there are different opinions upon the Irish Home Rule question. Suppose that Mr. Borden's policy had been endorsed by Parliament and the three ships he proposes to hand over to the control of the Admiralty were now in commission. They would have been subject to the orders of the Admiralty. If they had been ordered to Irish-waters with their ships of the navy the order must have been obeyed; there would have been no alternative. Then we would have seen ships which had been contributed by Canada taking part in movements upon which Canadian citizens hold strong and different opinions. We would have seen them used in connection with the settlement of a question which, in actual fact, is entirely and only a question of domestic policy in the United Kingdom. The difficulty and the gravity of such a situation in Canada does not need to be emphasized. The effect which it might easily have upon Imperial relations does not need to be outlined.

It is true of course, that if the Borden policy had been approved by Parliament last year the ships to be built would not yet have been constructed. But other questions than Home Rule may arise affecting the United Kingdom and the navy. Upon such questions, though they affected Canada in nowise directly, strong and divergent views might be held in the Dominion. With the Borden policy of contribution and centralization in effect Canadian ships in the Imperial navy would be subject to absolute Admiralty control. They might be used for purposes of which a large section of the Canadian people did not approve but Admiralty control would necessarily prevail. How readily such a condition might lead to friction, friction which would injuriously affect the relations between the Dominion and the United Kingdom, no one needs to be told.

PELLETIER AND PADLOCKS.

Liberal Criticism of Nationalist Postmaster General Justified by Recent Events—But Pelletier Still Looks After His Friends.

Recent events have abundantly justified last year's Liberal criticism of Hon. L. P. Pelletier's contract with the Ontario Equipment Company for 350,000 mail bag locks and keys. A year ago, however, the Nationalist Postmaster-General, his colleagues and the Government newspapers were indignantly declaring that the Liberal criticism was vicious and without shadow of foundation. They were boasting, too, that Mr. Pelletier had made a contract of wondrous excellence.

Three hundred and fifty thousand locks and keys would supply the requirements of the Post Office Department for a generation or two. But Mr. Pelletier was bound to give his friends the enormous contract at $1 for each lock and key, or $350,000 in all. The absurdity of the quantity as well as the question of price and the quality of the lock, was criticised by the Liberals, and warmly defended by the Government. The quality of the lock was declared by Mr. Pelletier to be beyond question in superiority.

Now comes the announcement through a return tabled in the Commons, that it has been necessary to cancel the contract because of the failure of the company to live up to its obligations.

Minister and the thing was done. Duties were imposed and Mr. White frankly admitted that with the aid of the duty the company would probably be able to furnish the full Canadian supply of caustic soda.

Put in another way, the Borden Government, through Mr. White, has legislated to give one company a monopoly in the Canadian market. The Government has used its power to give monopoly privileges to one group of its High Protectionist friends.

To create a monopoly in caustic soda manufacture may or may not be a very serious thing in itself though it is certain that the tariff change will bring an increase in the price exacted from the Canadian people for this particular commodity. But it is a serious thing when it is frankly admitted by the Government's spokesman that the tariff is revised upwards for the express purpose of giving one company a monopoly. Inevitably, the maintenance of a High Protectionist tariff fosters monopolies and mergers and trusts and under these circumstances to establish and enforce such a tariff is bad enough; it is infinitely worse when there is the bold admission that the tariff is increased simply and solely for the express purpose of enabling friends of the Government to have the home market as a special profitable preserve for themselves. If there were no other proof, this one incident would be sufficient in itself to show that the present Government is a Government with which the desires of Special Interests take precedence over all else, to the detriment and loss of the Canadian people.

“OBNOXIOUS AND PERNICIOUS” CONSERVATIVE MEMBER SO DESCRIBES GOVERNMENT'S PLAN TO USE PUBLIC MONEY TO MEET A POLITICAL OBLIGATION.

“The Government is establishing a most obnoxious and pernicious principle” declared Mr. W. F. Nickle, M. P., in the Commons recently in speaking of the Borden-White legislation to reimburse from the public treasury the depositors who suffered through the failure of the Farmers' Bank, several years ago. Mr. Nickle is a Conservative representing an Ontario riding.

Many depositors were seriously affected by the bank's failure. Taking advantage of this fact during the 1911 election campaign, some twenty Conservative candidates in Ontario—among them Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor—sought to make it appear that the failure had been due to the granting of the charter by the late Government, saying nothing of the criminal actions of the Bank's manager which were the real and only cause.

Further than this, they promised their electors that if Mr. Borden came to power, depositors would be reimbursed by the Dominion. Naturally enough, Mr. Crothers and his friends, gained votes through that promise.

Following the accession of the Borden Government, Sir William Meredith, chief justice of Ontario, was appointed to determine the responsibility for the bank's failure. After a careful inquiry, he made this statement in summing up his findings: “The efficient cause of that loss (the loss brought by the failure) was the recklessness and fraud of those entrusted with the management of the bank, and not the granting of the (Dominion) certificate.” Incidentally it may be noted the General Manager of the bank is now in the penitentiary because of his criminal management of the institution's affairs.

Notwithstanding this finding Premier Borden has introduced legislation under which $1,200,000 of public money is to be taken to reimburse the depositors.

FLYING FOXES OF INDIA

During the Day They Sleep In Their Hanging Head Downward.

People who have lived in India familiar with the long strings of flying foxes which can often be seen went their way in single file from the sleeping places in remote trees to fruit gardens upon which they prey.

These curious creatures, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, sometimes measure as much as four across the wings and have reddish brown fur and mole colored whiskers. After their nocturnal depredations they fly away with the dawn to a tree some isolated place and there rest during the day, hanging head downward from the boughs in the manner of clutching the branch with their feet.

As the flying foxes gather on the selected trees there is a tremendous competition, for each newcomer is vigorously driven off from one place after another until he eventually manages to get a perch for himself. Those on the meanwhile keep up an incessant winging, each endeavoring to secure highest and best place to rest. Sometimes many hundreds of these strange creatures may be seen hanging from the branches of a large tree.

When opportunity offers they are ten shot, and some of the natives consider their flesh a delicacy, though hardly appeals to Europeans.

Literary and Musical Pillage.

Bernard Shaw's defense of literary “pillage” was anticipated by his fellow countryman, Balfe, the composer of “The Bohemian Girl,” who used to borrow generously from other people's scores. On one occasion, the London Express recalls, he was rehearsing a new opera at Drury Lane and the fiddle, an Italian, was horrified to come upon page after page of famous music. “Mr. Balfe, Mr. Balfe,” said in horror, “dat is Mozart.” “A capital man, too,” was the Irish reply. “Get on with the rehearsal Indianapolis News.

WEIGHT OF A BODY.

How It Decreases as It Goes Above or Below the Earth's Surface.

Everybody weighs more at the surface of the earth than it can at any other point. Its weight diminishes as it is removed above the surface or below it. As it rises from the surface its weight decreases in inverse ratio to the squares of the distances from the center of the earth. As it descends below the surface its weight decreases directly as the distance from the center of the earth.

Thus a body weighing 100 pounds at the surface of the earth, which is approximately 4,000 miles from the center, would weigh only twenty-five pounds at a point 4,000 miles high. At twice the distance it has one-quarter the weight.

If we drop the same body half the distance to the center of the earth or to a point approximately 2,000 miles below the surface it will weigh fifty pounds.

The reason for this is that at 2,000 miles from the center the body is on the surface of a sphere of 2,000 miles' radius.

What causes weight is the mass of matter combined with distance from the center. A globe of 2,000 miles'

Words on Which Common Usage and Dictionaries Disagree.

LINCOLN AND LIEN AND LION.

An Amusing Verbal Duel In the Supreme Court In Which the Lean Lawyer's Wit Came Into Play—A Blind Man's Criticism of Irving.

There are many words so habitually mispronounced that the correct accent (i. e., the accent favored by the dictionaries) would appear wrong if anybody used it in current conversation. This, of course, means that common usages have overridden the dictionary and established a new standard which the dictionary of the future will have to respect, just as those of today respect the pronunciation of "lien" that they rejected in the past. Such words are cocaine and ptomaine, which the dictionary of the present recognizes as trisyllables, thus: co-ca-in, po-ma-in.

Anyone familiar with French—a language that may be said to possess no accented syllables—will understand Taine's complaint about London restaurants that whenever he ordered potatoes the waiter invariably served him with buttered toast.

And of course it was another Frenchman who made a jest of matrimony by pronouncing it ma-trim-ony.

Mark Lemon records a story about Lord Chancellor Eldon and Sir Arthur Pigott. The first always pronounced the word "lien" in two syllables, as if it was spelled li-en; the latter pronounced it in one syllable, lean, just as it would be pronounced in ordinary conversation. On this difference Jekyll wrote an epigram:

Sir Arthur, Sir Arthur, why, what do you mean?

By saying the chancellor's lion is lean? Do you think that his kitchen's so bad as all that?

That nothing within it will ever get fat?

Lord Eldon's pronunciation of this legal term was not unknown at one time in America. Witness an anecdote about Lincoln. He once appeared in the supreme court in a case involving a lien upon a piece of property.

The presiding judge was noted alike for obstinacy and pedantry. Lincoln, referring to the lien, pronounced it "lean." This visibly affected his honor.

"Li-en, Mr. Lincoln," he gently remonstrated.

"Very well," said Lincoln. But a little later he forgot himself and out came the pronunciation "lean."

Once more he was corrected by the judge.

"As you please," retorted Lincoln, somewhat nettled.

"Not as I please," came from the bench. "That is the pronunciation favored by Webster and by Worcester. It so obtains at Westminster hall and also at our own supreme court in Washington."

Lincoln had now recovered his constitutional good humor. Bowing to the court, he said: "Certainly, your honor, certainly. I only desire to say that if my client had known there was a lion on his farm for so long a time,

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

FLINT STONES WERE SCARCE.

Our War Office Had to Advertise For Them in 1776.

"The war office calls upon all persons who know where flint stones can be secured to notify congress."

Was there aught of prophecy in this brief appeal printed four days after the signing of the Declaration of Independence?

A copy of the Pennsylvania Packet contains the advertisement. The newspaper bears date of July 8, 1776, and in the same column explains that the flints are to be used for rifles. And without the old flintlock there would have been no American independence—at least not for many more years after the Boston tea party, if indeed the colonials unarmed could have mustered up courage to dump the lead lined boxes into the bay.

Further perusal of the old newspaper shows Jamaica rum and sugar were offered for sale by the hogshead; a reward of $6 was offered for the return of a horse that had strayed away from the range, and a woman who had lost two cows rushed into print with the statement that the individual who would lead the bovines home again would be remunerated to the extent of $4.

If we drop the same body until the distance to the center of the earth or to a point approximately 2,000 miles below the surface it will weigh fifty pounds.

The reason for this is that at 2,000 miles from the center the body is on the surface of a sphere of 2,000 miles radius.

What causes weight is the mass of matter combined with distance from the center. A globe of 2,000 miles radius contains one-eighth as much matter as a globe of 4,000 miles radius, the size of the earth; therefore only one-eighth as much matter attracts the body, which, if mass were the only factor, would at 2,000 miles from the center weigh one-eighth as much as at the surface of the earth. But it is also only half as far from the center as it was at the surface and, if distance were the only factor, would weigh four times as much as on the surface. Four times one-eighth is one-half; therefore it weighs half what it would at the surface.

Now, suppose we drop this body to the very center of the earth and see what it would weigh. All the matter of the earth is now outside it and can exercise no attraction whatever upon it; therefore it weighs nothing at all.—New York World.

DISCIPLINE AT SEA.

Penalties and Privileges Aboard Ship In Former Days.

Some remarkable advice to seafarers is given in an old Portuguese book published for the guidance of mariners. Among other things it deals with the rights of captains to assault sailors and the methods in which the attacks are to be legally met.

The sailor was advised to bear calmly any verbal abuse that an irate skipper may hurl at him, but if words passed to blows he was to run away into the bows and firmly take his stand beside the anchor chain.

Should an infuriated master armed with a belaying pin or other lethal weapon chase him to his stronghold the mariner was to slip round to the farther side of the chain. Should he still be pursued he was to call his messmates to witness that the master had broken the rules by circumventing the chain.

Then at last he was to defend himself, and let us hope he would do it well. Other little matters of discipline are set out, and they show a noble effort to make the punishment fit the crime.

The ship's clerk, a privileged person who acted as bookkeeper, purser and cargo master, was liable to be branded in the forehead, to lose his right hand and to forfeit all of his property if he made a wrong entry in the ship's book or connived at such an entry.

A seaman who fell asleep on his watch was only put on a diet of bread and water unless the offense was committed in hostile waters. In that case he must be stripped naked, flogged by his messmates and ducked thrice in the sea.

If he were an officer, however, he would only lose all food except his bread and have a pail of water flung over from the head downward.—London Tit-Bits.

NOT IN A PRECISE, came from the bench. "That is the pronunciation favored by Webster and by Worcester. It so obtains at Westminster hall and also at our own supreme court in Washington."

Lincoln had now recovered his constitutional good humor. Bowing to the court, he said: "Certainly, your honor, certainly. I only desire to say that if my client had known there was a lion on his farm for so long a time, I am sure he would not have stayed there even long enough to bring this suit, and I should not have had the pleasure of appearing before this honorable court."

Of Henry Irving we are told that to heroic perseverance and hard study he added almost childlike eagerness to adopt any suggested improvement in his manner of delivery. A blind man once offered an illuminating criticism on his Shylock. The sensitive ear of the sightless auditor detected a fault in Irving's opening line:

Three thousand ducats—well!

"I hear no sound of the user in that," was the blind man's subsequent comment to Irving himself. "It is said with the reflective air of a man to whom money means very little."

The justice of the criticism was acknowledged by Irving. He revised his reading, not only of the first line, but of several others in which he now saw that he had not been enough of the moneylender.

George Eliot in "Middlemarch" supplies a classic instance of the value of the accent. When Lyndgate, sore distressed at the failure of all his professional and financial plans, comes to his wife for sympathy, she meets him with the query:

"What can I do?"

Whereon the author comments: "That little speech of four words, like so many others in all languages, is capable of expressing all states of mind, from helpless dimness to exhaustive argumentative perception, from the completest self devoting fellowship to the most neutral aloofness. Rosamund's thin utterance threw into the words 'What can I do?' as much neutrality as they could hold. They fell like a mortal chill on Lyndgate's roused tenderness."

One of Du Maurier's best cartoons in Punch shows a deferential man of inquiring mind propounding this question to a professional beauty:

"Ain't you tired of hearing people say 'That is the beautiful Miss Belsize?'"

"Oh, no," the professional beauty replies. "I am getting tired of hearing people say 'Is THAT the beautiful Miss Belsize?'"—William S. Walsh in Chicago Record-Herald.

Sites of the Capital.

The capital of the United States has been located at different times at the following places: At Philadelphia from Sept. 5, 1774, to December, 1776; at Baltimore Dec. 20, 1776, to March, 1777; Philadelphia, March 4, 1777, to September, 1777; Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 27, 1777, to Sept. 30, 1777; York, Pa., Sept. 30, 1777, to July, 1778; Philadelphia, July 2, 1778, to June 30, 1783; Princeton, N. Then the seat of the government was removed to Philadelphia, where it remained until 1800, since which time it has been in Washington.

Decimated.

We speak of a city or an army being "decimated" when we mean to imply that it has suffered from many fatalities. The term is taken—and taken wrongly—from an old and barbarous custom of punishing mutinous regiments, town defenders, etc., by killing one man out of every ten ("decimus" being the Latin word for "tenth"). Thus, unless we mean that precisely one person in ten was killed, our use of "decimate" is incorrect.

INDIVIDUAL FAIR PLAY.

In a herd of 12 dairy cows the age yield last year was 3,780 pc of milk and 144 pounds of fat. 10 best cows in the district ave 6,293 pounds of milk and 221 pc of fat, while the 10 poorest gave 2,818 pounds of milk and 107 pc of fat.

When it is seen that the difference in the average of these two groups of 10 cows is 3,475 pounds of milk while between the best and poorest individual cow there was actual difference of 6,195 pounds of milk it is quite evident that figuring out a cold, dead machine-like "average" is quite unsuitable and unfair when it comes to dealing with a nervous, sensitive cow.

That difference of $61.95 bet the earning power of two individual cows indicates the cow's natural rebellion against mere mechanical treatment. Being an animated and complex bundle of nerves and tissue needs study of her particular likes and dislikes, then her best result be cheerfully given. She is not simply one of a team, but an individual whose peculiarities are well worth studying to insure development.

The average may be used in g due justice to each cow only when in the herd are equally good, as long as these remarkable differences exist between individual cows, will also remain the need for a range of cost of feed and production of each one separately. Then the can be built up on the definite size of each one contributing a measure of profit; otherwise the deficiencies of several poor cows add the heavy burden shouldered by two or three star workers of team that do make large profits. Dairy records give fair play to cow and help in judging individual merit.

COURSE OF A PITCHED BALL

Why a Straight Fast One Jumps sideways in the Air.

That a pitched baseball curves in direction in which the nose of the ball is moving because of the spin-up if the twist given by the pitcher is toward, toward the right if the twist is to the right, and so on—is a matter of experience that is quite comprehensible, but how a hard pitched ball should jump sideways in a most irregular manner, although pitched straight without spinning is certainly puzzling. In the Journal of the Franklin Institute Professor W. S. Franklin of high university expounds the phenomenon as well as the philosophy of pitched balls. Multitudes of "fans" have always supposed that the bat qualities of a straight pitched ball were due simply to its swiftness and suspected this eccentricity. Prof. Franklin states the case in this way:

Consider a very smooth ball which is moving through still water without spinning. There is certainly no reason why the ball should jump to the right than to the left. Therefore it must continue to move straight toward. That is good logic. But such a ball is no more subject to logic than a sharp stick. The fact is that the ball does jump sideways and in a most regular manner. This may be shown by dropping a smooth marble in a glass of still water. The marble goes straight for several inches and suddenly jumps sideways. Similar smooth baseball jumps sideways in glass of water because the

HOW TO TELL THE AGE OF HENS AND PIGEONS.

There has been a great development of late years in the Canadian Poultry Industry. This development has been brought about by many factors, chief among which are the untiring and highly successful efforts of breeders; the experimental work carried on at the various poultry plants of the Dominion and Provincial experimental farms and agricultural colleges, the information given by these institutions' poultry exhibits, in which the people of Canada are now taking a great interest, and last, but not least, the profits of the industry, little thought of in the past, but now well recognized and appreciated.

Production is increasing at an extraordinary rate while the quality of the product shows wonderful improvement. The value of the flock depends upon the production of the birds selected, but the productiveness of any bird decreases after a certain age is reached. It is very important, therefore, that the breeder be able to tell with some degree of certainty the age of the fowls which he desires to retain or purchase for breeding purposes, otherwise he will be exposed to the risk of having individuals that are past their prime and that do not pay for their keep.

Record books have been established for horses, cattle and many other animals, where information pertaining to pedigree, age, etc., are kept for reference, but it has remained to Victor Fortier, Assistant Dominion Poultry Husbandman, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, after much personal observation and study, to publish a method whereby the age of hens can be accurately estimated. This information which is meant especially for the breeder and the judge, has been published under the direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, in a profusely illustrated bulletin, which is No. 16 second series of the Central Experimental Farm. Copies will be mailed to those who apply for them to the Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

If its advertised you will get it at Wallace's.

You will certainly spend one of the most enjoyable days of your life if you take in the Foresters' excursion to Picton's Victoria Day celebration on Monday, May 25th, for this good old burgh is certainly providing a great program of sports, consisting of splendid horse races, thrilling motor cycle races, collegiate cadet drill, snappy base ball match, band concert, and a merry-go-round for the amusement of the little folks.

The explanation lies in the fact a rapidly moving stream of air is when it flows past a ball with unstable sheet will spurt now up now downward. The condition is same when the ball splits the air is shunted in a glancing manner the bat. The only requisite for baffling effect is power in the pitch arm.

The Tango.

The tango mystery grows all time. It is asserted upon every hand that nobody dances it. The furor continues. Ask a dance master if he teaches the tango he will tell you no. He knows what it is—he has seen it done by experts—but he doesn't teach it. It is a popular dance.

There seems to be two tangos. One is the tango which comes from the Argentine Republic, a slow, difficult thing that is not worth doing at unless one can do it very well, indeed. The other tango is any dance—the Castle walk, the hesitation waltz, or anything our father did not dance. This latter is popular tango danced all over country. It is the one at which people who do not care about dancing continually thunder. It is the tango at all. The tango is a myth, and they are knocking daylight out of it every day.

Limitations as to Time.

A well known preacher was making a pedestrian excursion in a rural district. Feeling rather hungry, he looked at his watch to see it was nearly dinner time, but found the watch was stopped. Just then happening to meet with a country boy, he asked, "What time is it, lad?" The boy replied, "Just sir." "Only 12?" said the minister. "I thought it was more." "It is more round these parts," said boy simply. "It begins at 1." —Mall Gazette.

Vegetable Ivory.

Vegetable ivory is the product of plant known among botanists as Pithecellobium macrocarpo. It is a native of South America, found chiefly on banks of the Magdalena. Colombia. It is mostly found in separate groves in damp localities and upon ground that bears no other form of plant. The seeds contain a milky juice which as it ages, hardens until it becomes a valuable substitute for animal ivory.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, May 18.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 124 cars, comprising 2543 cattle, 803 hogs, 43 sheep and 218 calves.

Butchers'.

Choice steers, $3 to $8.30, and one load at $8.50; good to choice at $7.75 to $8; medium at $7.50 to $7.75; common at $7 to $7.40; choice cows at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common cows at $5 to $5.75; cannery and cutters at $3.50 to $4.50; choice bulls at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common bulls at $6 to $6.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

The market for stockers and feeders held about steady. Choice steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $7.35 to $7.50; steers, 600 to 700 lbs., sold at $7 to $7.25; stock heifers, $6.75 to $7.10; short-keep feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each sold at $7.60 to $7.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Few milkers and springers were offered, and as a result the market was very strong, as there was not enough to supply the demand.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were moderate, only 218 being on sale. The market was very firm. Choice calves sold at $9 to $10; good calves at $8 to $9; medium at $7 to $8, and common at $6.25 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

There were 43 sheep and lambs reported on sale. Prices were firm. Sheep, weaned, sold at $6.50 to $7.75; rams, $6 to $6.50; clipped yearling American wethers, $8.50; yearling natives, unclipped, $8.75 to $9.50; spring lambs, $7 to $10 each.

Hogs.

The market for hogs was again lower, at $7.90 f.o.b. cars; $8.25 fed and watered, and $8.50 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 18.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end, market offerings amounted to 700 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 2500 hogs and 300 calves.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for cattle yesterday morning, and prices as compared with a week ago showed an advance of 25c to 50c per 100 pounds, owing to a better demand and a smaller supply coming forward. A feature of the trade was the strength in the market for bulls, which sold 50c per 100 pounds higher on account of the somewhat limited offerings and the improved demand because of the high prices ruling for other grades of cattle. Choice stock brought as high as $8 to $8.25 per 100 pounds. There was also a good demand for butcher's cows for both domestic account and for shipment to Quebec and Ottawa, sales of choice being made at $7.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.

Grace Church.

The annual report of Grace Church for the year just closing as presented to the district meeting on Wednesday last shows the church to have had a most successful year. The Sunday school report was most encouraging. The cradle roll 105, primary classes 80, junior classes 81, intermediate classes 74, senior classes 80, adult classes 59, adult class (organized according to international standard) 98, home department 24, teachers and officers 37. Total Sunday school force 638. Contributions for Missions $100. Average attendance for the year 310. The Epworth League also presented a splendid report.

Encourage Building.

At present the crying need in Napanee is more houses to accommodate the growing population. Several houses are being built, and the plans for others are well under way. The town should encourage, in every way possible, the building of more houses. Are they doing it? We don't think so. The following is an example: On the south side of the street near the Iron Works there has recently been erected a commodious double house, which is just about ready to be occupied, and although application for a sidewalk has been made the council has taken no action to grant the request. As soon as this building is completed tenants are ready to move in. There is no walk on that side of the street, and we think this should be one of the first walks built, yet the council on Monday evening planned the building of several other walk and other work which will take some time to complete. This is a section of the town that in all probability will be built up in the near future, and any assistance the town can give by building walks, etc., should be a first consideration, that is, if they wish to see the town grow. The owner of this new double house informed us that he has under consideration the building of another new house just east of the present one. Think it over Mr. Alderman.

Ever anxious to offer the most newest and novel acts regardless of cost or trouble, Ernest Haag, this season, presents among a grand profusion of awe inspiring marvels of the Mighty Haag shows, the incomparable aerial Lamonts. Each and every member of this matchless troupe seemingly control the law of gravitation in each of their many death defying deeds of daring. Of them it may be truthfully said that they begin where all other aerialists stop, working on apparatus at the uppermost top of the huge canvas dome, and without a net or safeguard of any kind to meet them, those venturesome men and women execute their hair-raising stunts with the same unconcern the average person partakes of a dinner. Wherever seen they are proclaimed by press and public premiers of their dangerous profession. The mighty Haag shows will exhibit at Napanee, afternoon and evening, June 1st, at which time show-goers of this vicinity will be afforded an opportunity of seeing this wonderful troupe. It is, however, only one of the several mighty feature acts to be placed on view by these shows, which do not now have, nor never have had, room for threadbare and worn out numbers, imitators are never tolerated, and as a result every name upon the program of these shows is that of an originator in his or her respective line. It is because of all this that the mighty Haag shows are to-day alone and unrivaled.

Coun. Waller gave notice of motion that at next meeting of council would introduce a by-law licensing and regulating restaurants.

Coun. Walters, chairman of Property Committee, reported the caretaker of the Harvey W Park had informed him that soon the beaches needed repairing. Walters also asked the council they thought of the idea of providing wire baskets for the people to use paper sacks and such like, when quenting the park.

Mayor Alexander also thought couple of baskets should be placed the post office and thus do away waste paper being thrown on street, and by being blown around the wind and frightening horses.

It was suggested that the Street Committee employ a man to make the rounds of the business section every morning and gather up loose papers on the streets. Some work could also be done at park.

Referred to the Town Property Committee with power to act.

A by-law to levy the rate necessary for raising the taxes for 1914 was passed. The rate for general purpose was fixed at 19 mills on the dollar and 10½ mills on the dollar for school purposes.

Mr. F. L. Hooper addressed council in reference to water run into his cellar, caused by what thought to be a blockage in the drain which carries the overflow from horse fountain on the market square.

Referred to Streets Committee. A by-law to regulate the payment of taxes for 1914 was passed. The by-law contained, among others, following clauses: All taxes are payable at the office of the collector or before June 15th.

A discount of 2 per cent. will be allowed on all taxes paid on or before August 1st, 5 per cent. will be allowed on all taxes remaining unpaid October 1st.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Walters the council decided to chase two 600-gallon sprinklers, paid for by a debenture extended over a period of five years, and intended to street sprinkling, which shall be collected on a frontage basis of property on the streets sprinkled.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Wiseman the clerk was instructed to write the Sawyer-Massey Co., Milton, and the Francis Hankin Montreal, and procure from specifications in detail of the sprinklers for which they quote prices. And also ascertain if a discount could be secured if two sprinklers were purchased.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Walters the Street Commission was instructed to remove any trees or shrubbery growing on streets in any part of the town.

On motion the Clerk was instructed to give notice through the local press of the intention of the council to construct certain cement walks in town of Napanee during the year.

The council decided that the following would be the order of construction of cement walks: West side street, from Bridge to Thomas; north side Thomas street, from Centre John to west side John street, from S. Lapum's corner to G. T. Rail.

A motion was passed prohibiting the loan or rental of any of the utensils.

The farmer was making his usual weekly call on Mrs. Wiggins.

"P'taters is good this mornin', madam," he said, casting an admiring look at the basketful he had brought.

"Oh, is they?" retorted Mrs. Wiggins. "That reminds me. I wants to have a word with you about them you sold me last week. How is it that them at the bottom of the basket is so much smaller than them at the top?"

"Come about like this," replied old John, a knowing look on his face. "P'taters is growin' that fast now that by the time I get a basketful dug the last ones is about twice the size of the first!"—Chicago Daily News.

Public Works, asking that he be informed as to whether the council had complied with Section 3 of the Building Trades Protection Act. One section of the Act reads as follows : "The council of every city, town, township and village shall by by-law, appoint a sufficient number of competent persons to be inspector for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this Act in the Municipality."

Referred to the Printing and By-law Committee to report.

From U. M. Wilson in regard to Smith vs. Napanee. The trouble is an old one and arose over the closing of a road allowance at the time the disposal works was constructed. Mr. Wilson, on behalf of his client, asked the following concessions from the town : Building a road in lieu of one closed, paying costs incurred to date, $30.00, and damages to the extent of $30.00.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Wiseman the matter was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act, said committee to secure the advice of town solicitor in reference to any action taken.

From Francis Hankin Co., Montreal, offering to supply town with drain cleaning rods at a cost of $48.50, f. o. b. Napanee. Ordered filed.

From Francis Hankin Co., Montreal, offering to sell the town a 600 gallon sprinkler for $387.50.

Ordered laid on the table.

Messes. Jas. Savage and several other ratepayers resident on Dundas street west, petitioned the council to have the arc light, recently removed from near Mr. Harshaw's residence, returned.

Several citizens addressed the council in favor of the petition and against the petition.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Graham the council decided to take no action in reference to the petition.

Dr. Maloney, Provincial Officer of Health, was present and addressed the council on the question of sanitation and the duties pertaining to his office.

A tour of inspection was made, at least once a year, if possible to every town in the Province of Ontario. He would be pleased if he could be of any service to the council or the Board of Health.

The powers given to the Provincial Officer of Health were large, but he would be sorry indeed to have it understood that his visit to Napanee assumed the nature of police duty.

His duty was to render any assistance possible in regard to sanitary matters. He called the attention of the council to the urgent necessity of cleaning up the town, and he was sorry to say many unsanitary conditions existed in Napanee. The town but he realized the fact that owing to should be well cleaned up by May 1st, backward springs sometimes this was impossible, but in any case it should not be later than May 15th. A single fact regarding sanitation was that it is now conceded that at least 50 per cent. of all the diseases are carried by flies, and the breeding places of flies in the garbage pile. If there were no garbage piles there would practically be no flies.

On the padded feet of the fly hundreds of thousands of disease germs are carried, and thus the fly becomes a spreader of disease.

One of the essential needs was a good sanitary inspector and a good Board of Health. We suggested that the local press should carry on a campaign along these lines. Napanee was one of the prettiest towns in the Ottawa valley, and it was a pity that a little more attention was not paid to the question of sanitation.

The Streets Committee reported that they had made an inspection of the town to determine the question of what new walks were needed to be built this year. They found thirty-

The President of the Society read the following address :—
This is the seventh annual report which it has been my privilege to deliver. Each year seems to show added interest in our work and, although the methods of procuring results vary from year to year, the collection continues to grow and the local history which is being written and preserved becomes more valuable.

ADDITIONS TO THE COLLECTION.

Twenty-eight people have made gifts to the Society during the last year, included in the list are many most interesting old photographs, two large packages of crown deeds conveying lands in this country, an additional package of papers from Mr.
John Stevenson and many books.
Perhaps special mention should be made of a set of weights and measures as used by the late Thomas H. Waller when he was government superintendent over forty years ago.
These were presented by Mr. W. T.
Waller. The files of the local papers have been kept as is the custom and a few early issues of the Lennox and Addington newspapers have been received. Altogether it has been a good year for the Archives.

FINANCES.

The Treasurer's report shows a slight increase of the balance of cash on hand. This is partly accounted for by the fact the new volume of "Papers and Records" does not contain quite as many pages as the earlier issues. The membership stands at about the same number as before.
For the first time bills were sent out for annual dues and the innovation has proven most satisfactory, in some cases the remainder having prompted a bit of missionary work which has helped to secure new members.

PUBLICATIONS.

Volume five of our "Papers and Records" was issued in March. In this a number of early county school records are published with explanatory notes. The book has met with most favorable criticism from historians but owing to its being a copy of records does not make popular reading for those who want more of the romance of history. Many of the members who are entitled to a free copy of this book have failed to call for them.

LOCAL HISTORY WRITTEN DURING THE YEAR.

One result of the work which this Society has done has been to create an interest in our history, not only at home, but throughout the entire Province. Mr. Herrington's "History of Lennox and Addington" was published during the year and it has been particularly well received by all of the reviewers. This book has done more to stir up enthusiasm for the publication of county histories throughout the Province than any book published during the last decade. Its sale has been fully up to expectations but a rather curious fact is that the most of the copies sold have been bought by people who formerly lived in the County and are now far removed from the old home. The County sales have been larger outside of Napanee than in town.

Mr. Herrington has just written two splendid articles which will be read before learned Societies early in June.
His paper on the life of the Hon.
John Stevenson will be presented before the Royal Society of Canada at the annual meeting in Montreal and his paper on "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte" will be read at the annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society to be held in Ottawa.
Each will be printed in the publications of the Society for which it was prepared.

Our President read a paper on
"The Bay of Quinte Settlements During the War of 1812" at the annual meeting of the New York State Historical Association held at Oswego, N. Y., in October last, which will be published in that Association's annual report to be issued during the summer.

THE SEASON'S LECTURES.

Following the usual custom a course of eight lectures has been given during the season. The people of Napanee are again to be congratulated upon the manner in which they have patronized these meetings. Seldom has a lecturer been here who has not congratulated us upon the size of his audience and not a few have remarked that the people of Napanee have the reputation of attending historical lectures better than those of any other town in Ontario. The programs for the year have been as follows :—

Oct. 24th, 1914—"The Meaning and the Value of the Study of History", by Prof. Herbert T. J. Coleman.

Nov. 28th, 1913—"An American Soldier's Experiences in the War of 1812", by Mr. Justice Riddell.

Dec. 19th, 1913—"Social life in Canada after the Rebellion", by Prof. J.
L. Horrison.

Jan. 23rd, 1914—"Canada and her Sisters", by Col. Wm. N. Ponton.

Feb. 27th, 1914—"Canada and the Empire", by Dr. L. E. Horning.

March 27th, 1914—"Venice", by Prof. W. L. Grant.

April 24th, 1914—"A Librarian's Hobby", by Dr. George H. Locke.

May 15th, 1914—"Some more Photographs in the Society's Collection", by C. M. Warner.

Several excellent addresses are already promised for next year. The new season should be a most interesting one for those who appreciate a good lecture.

CHANGE OF OFFICERS.

At a special meeting of the Society held on November 28th, 1913, the resignation of Mr. U. J. Flach as Secretary-Treasurer was accepted. Mr.
Flach was elected to the office at the first meeting of the Society held on May 9th, 1907, and held the office continuously until he moved from Napanee. He has always taken a great interest in the work which has been done and his resignation was accepted with keen regret.

At the same meeting Mr. John W.
Robinson was unanimously elected to succeed Mr. Flach as Secretary-Treasurer.

NECROLOGY.

Mr. James Daly, an Honorary President of the Society, died at Napanee, on Thursday, October 2nd, 1913. Mr.
Daly was born in this County in 1825,
a son of Mercy Everett and Lewis Daly. He was elected an Honorary President at our annual meeting held
May 15th, 1908.

CONCLUSION.

Another year has passed and our collection is still preserved in a building which is not fire-proof. The local papers recently printed an appeal to our wealthy citizens to build a home for the Society. It would give the Lennox and Addington Historical Society a permanence not otherwise obtainable and the memorial thus erected would show future generations that we had some public spirited and generous men in Napanee in 1914.

Again let me thank you for electing me as your President. The work has been a most agreeable task. Dr. Locke would probably call it a hobby. Certainly it is absorbing and one that I heartily recommend.

The election of officers for the coming year was held, M. S. Bogart, Esq., occupying the chair during the balloting. The result of the election was as follows :

Hon. Pres.—Walter S. Herrington,
K. C.; William J. Paul, M. P.
Pres.—Clarence M. Warner.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. A. W. Grange.
Sec-Treas.—John W. Robinson, Esq.
Committee—Mrs. Henry T. Forward,
Uriah Wilson, Esq., Ex-M. P.; George D. Hawley, Esq., Ex-M. P.; Dr. Raymond A. Leonard; Edwin R. Checkley, Esq.

After the business session the President of the Society gave an address on
"Some more Photographs in the Society's Collection". This address was illustrated by fifty-six lantern views, a short history of each making the pictures of special interest.
Since the first address on this subject was given many interesting photographs have been added to the Collection, and it is hoped that many more will be presented during the coming months.

Thus ended another successful year for the Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

The meeting closed at 9:30 p.m.
with "God Save the King."

BY GEORGE BARR MCCUTCHEON

"My dear, remember you are speaking of my sister," he said with fine dignity but little discrimination. "Besides, I am not too drunk. I do see it. It's a damned annoying attitude. She's a traitor, un'stand me? A traitor. I intend to speak to her about it."

"It is better that you should do it," said his wife. "I am afraid I could not control my temper."

"Penelope's a disgrace—an absolute disgrace. How many legs did Hodder say she'd—she'd broken?"

"Oh, you're disgusting!" cried Lady Evelyn. "Go to bed! I thought I could talk to you tonight, but I can't. You scarcely can stand up."

"Now, Evelyn, you do me injustice. I'm only holding to this chair to keep it from moving 'round the room. See that? Course I c'n stan' up!" he cried triumphantly.

"I am utterly disgusted with you. Oh, for a man! A man with real blood in his veins, a man who could do something besides eat and drink at my cost. I pay your debts, clothe you, feed you—house your ungrateful sister—and what do I get in return? This!"

Lord Hazelhurst's eyes staled beneath this unexpected assault, his legs stiffened, his shoulders squared themselves in a pitiful attempt at dignity.

"Lady Hazelhurst, you—you"—and then he collapsed into the chair, bursting into mauldin tears. She stood over by the dressing table and looked pitilessly upon the weak creature whose hiccoughing sobs filled the room. Her color was high, her breathing heavy.

There came a knock at the door, but she did not respond. Then the door opened quietly and Penelope entered the room, resolutely, fearlessly. Evelyn turned her eyes upon the intruder and stared for a moment.

"Did you knock?" she asked at last.

"Yes. You did not answer."

"Wasn't that sufficient?"

"Not tonight, Evelyn. I came to have it out with you and Cecil. Where is he?"

"There!"

"Asleep?" with a look of amazement.

"I hope not. I should dislike having to call the servants to carry him to his room."

"I see. Poor old chap!" She went over and shook him by the shoulder. He sat up and stared at her blankly through his drenched eyes. Then, as if the occasion called for a supreme effort, he tried to rise, ashamed that his sister should have found him in his present condition. "Don't get up, Cecil. Wait a bit and I'll go to your room with you."

"What have you to say to me, Penelope?" demanded Evelyn, a green light in her eyes.

"I can wait. I prefer to have Cecil—understand," she said bitterly.

"If it's about our affair with Shaw it won't make any difference whether Cecil understands or not. His your friend asked you to plead for him?"

"You'd starve if it were not for me," lage for my trunks." She paused near the door and then came back to Cecil's side. "Goodby, Cecil. I'll write. Goodby." He looked up with a hazy smile. "G'night," he muttered thickly.

Without another word or so much as a glance at Lady Hazelhurst, Penelope Drake went swiftly from the room. The big hall clock struck the half hour after 11. Some one—a woman—was laughing in the billiard room below. The click of the balls came to her ears like the snapping of angry teeth. She did not hesitate. It was not in her nature. The room in which she had found so much delight was now loathsome to her. With nervous fingers she threw the small things she most cherished into a bag—her purse, her jewels, her little treasures. Somehow it seemed to her as if she were hurrying to catch a night train, that was all. With her own strong young arms she dragged the two huge trunks from the closet. Half an hour later they were full and locked. Then she looked about with a dry, mirthless smile.

"I wonder where I am to go," she murmured, half aloud. A momentary feeling of indecision attacked her. The click of the balls had ceased, the clock had struck 12. It was dark and still, and the wind was crying in the trees.

"She won't go," Lady Hazelhurst was saying to herself as she sat, narrow eyed and hateful in her alcove.

ness outside brought back the growing shudders.

"What—what d'ye mean?" demanded he, bracing up with a splendid effort.

"She's left the house, that's all. We quarreled. I don't know where she's gone. Yes, I do know. She's gone to Shaw's for the night. She's with him. I saw her going," she cried, striving between fear and anger.

"You've—you've turned her out?" gasped Lord Hazelhurst numbly. "In the night? Good Lord! Why—why did you let her go?" He turned and rushed toward the door, tears springing to his eyes. He was sobering now and the tears were wrenched from his hurt pride. "How long ago?"

"An hour or more. She went off her own accord. You'll find her at Shaw's," said her ladyship harshly. She hated to admit that she was to blame. But as her husband left the room, banging the door after him, she caught her breath several times in a futile effort to stay the sobs and then broke down and cried, a very much abused young woman. She hated everybody and everything.

CHAPTER VI.

In Which Dan Cupid Trespasses.

LADY BAZELHURST was right. Penelope was making her way through the blackest of nights toward the home of Randolph Shaw. In deciding upon this step, after long deliberation, she had said to herself: "Randolph Shaw is the only real man I've seen since coming to the mountains. I can trust him to help me tonight."

It was fully three miles to Shaw's place, most of the way over the narrow valley road. She knew she would encounter but few tortuous places. The last half mile, however, was steep, rugged and unfamiliar to her. She had ventured no nearer to his home than Renwood's deserted cottage, lying above and to the south of the road, almost at the base of the long hill on whose side Shaw had built his big home. To climb that hill was no easy task in daylight; at midnight, with the stars obscured by clouds and treetops, there was something perilously uncertain in the prospect.

Only the knowledge that patience and courage eventually would bring her to the end made the journey possible. Time would lead her to the haven; care would make the road a friend; a stout heart was her best ally. Strength of limb and strength of purpose she had, in use and in reserve. No power could have made her turn back willingly. Her anxious eyes were set ahead in the blackness. Her runaway feet were eager in obedience to her will.

"Why couldn't I have put it off until morning?" she was saying to herself as she passed down the gravelled drive and advanced to meet the wall of trees that frowned blackly in her face.

"What will he think? What will he say? Oh, he'll think I'm such a silly, romantic fool! No, he won't. He'll understand. He'll help me on to Plattsburg tomorrow. But will he think I've done this for effect? Won't he think I'm actually throwing myself at his head? No, I can't turn back. I'd rather die than go back to that house. It won't matter what he thinks. I'll be away from all of it tomorrow. I'll be out of his life, and I won't care what he thinks. England! Goodness! What's that?"

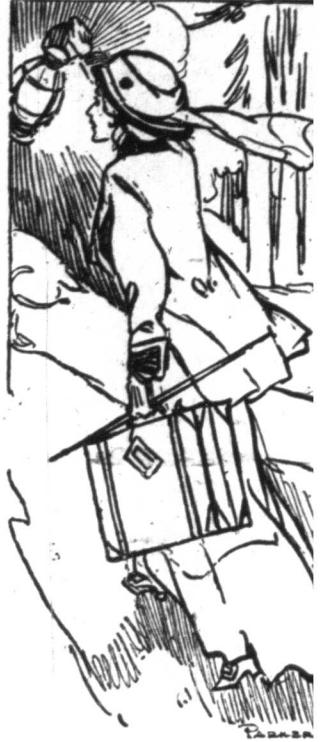

She had turned a bend in the drive and inst-

Her head grew light with the thought of those moments when their noses stood with muzzles together as if in proxy—the flesh grew dead though her blood went cold and trembled.

A pitiful confusion seized her, inexplicable timidity crept into heart, replacing the bold assurance that had been recklessly carrying on to him. It was as though she had whispered the truth into ear and she was beginning to believe it.

From that moment her courage began to fail. The glow from her eyes was a menace instead of a light. A sweet timorousness enveloped and something tingled—she knew what.

Spattering raindrops whizzed in face, ominous forerunner from inky sky. The wind was whistwith shrill glee in the treetops the treetops tried to flee before it mile and a half lay between her the big cottage on the hillside—most arduous part of the journey far. She walked and ran as she pursued, scudding over the road a swiftness that would have amazed another, but which seemed the essence of slowness to her. Thoughts of bears, tramps and wild beasts assailed her with intermittent terrors, but served to diminish the feeling of ness that had been interfering with her determination.

Past Renwood's cottage she shuddered as she recognized the steps and path that ran up the hill to the haunted house. Ghosts, wights and hobgoblins fell into the process of pursuers, cheered on by the shrill wind that grew more noisy as her feet carried her higher up mountain. Now she was on ground. She had never before explored so far as this. The hill was black abysses beyond its eeds.

She was breathless, half dead with fatigue and terror, when at last present condition. "Don't get up, Cecil. Wait a bit and I'll go to your room with you."

"What have you to say to me, Penelope?" demanded Evelyn, a green light in her eyes.

"I can wait. I prefer to have Cecil understand," she said bitterly.

"If it's about our affair with Shaw it won't make any difference whether Cecil understands or not. Has your friend asked you to plead for him?

Does he expect me to take him up on your account and have him here?"

"I was jesting when I said he would come tomorrow," said Penelope, ignoring the thrust and hurrying to her subject. "I couldn't go to sleep tonight if I neglected to tell you what I think of the outrage this morning. You and Cecil had no right to order Tompkins to shoot at Mr. Shaw. He is not a trespasser. Some one killed his dog today. When he pursued the coward a second shot was fired at him. He was wounded. Do you call that fair fighting? Ambushed, shot from behind a tree. I don't care what you and Cecil think about it. I consider it despicable. Thank God, Cecil was not really to blame. It is about the only thing I can say to my brother's credit."

Lady Bazelhurst was staring at her young sister-in-law with wide eyes. It was the first time in all her petted, vain life that any one had called her to account. She was at first too deeply amazed to resent the sharp attack.

"Penelope Drake!" was all she could say. Then the fury in her soul began to search for an outlet. "How dare you? How dare you?"

"I don't mean to hurt you. I am only telling you that your way of treating this affair is a mistake. It can be rectified. You don't want to be lawless; you don't understand what a narrow escape from murder you have had. Evelyn, you owe reparation to Mr. Shaw. He is—"

"I understand why you take his side. You cheapen and degrade yourself and you bring shame upon your brother and me by your disgraceful affair with this ruffian. Don't look shocked. You meet him secretly, I know. How much further you have gone with him I don't know. It is enough that you—"

"Stop! You shall not say such things to me!"

"You came in here to have it out with me. Well, we'll have it out. You think because you're English, and all that, that you are better than I. You show it in your every action; you turn up your nose at me because I am an American. Well, what if I am? Where would you be if it were not for me? And where would he be? You'd starve if it were not for me. You hang to me like a leech—you sponge on me—you gorge yourself!"

"That is enough, Evelyn. You have said all that is necessary. I deserve it, too, for meddling in your affairs. It may satisfy you to know that I have always despised you. Having confessed, I can only add that we cannot live another hour under the same roof. You need not order me to go. I shall do so of my own accord—gladly." Penelope turned to the door. She was as cold as ice.

"It is the first time you have ever done anything to please me. You may go in the morning."

"I shall go tonight!"

"As you like. It is near morning. Where do you expect to go at this hour of the night?"

"I am not afraid of the night. Tomorrow I shall send over from the vil-looked about with a dry, mirthless smile.

"I wonder where I am to go," she murmured, half aloud. A momentary feeling of indecision attacked her. The click of the balls had ceased, the clock had struck 12. It was dark and still, and the wind was crying in the trees.

* * * * *

"She won't go," Lady Bazelhurst was saying to herself as she sat, narrow eyed and hateful, in her window looking out into the night. "Life is too easy here." The light from the porch lanterns cast a feeble glow out beyond the porte cochere and down the drive. As she stared across the circle the figure of a woman suddenly cut a diametric line through it and lost itself in the wall of blackness that formed the circumference. Lady Evelyn started and stared unbelievably into the darkness, striving to penetrate it with her gaze. "It was she—Penelope," she cried, coming to her feet. "She's really gone—she meant it."

For many minutes she peered out into the night, expecting to see the shadow returning. A touch of anxious hope possessing her, she left the window and hurried down the corridor to Penelope's room. What she found there was most convincing. It was not a trick of the lanterns. The shadow had been real. It must be confessed that the peevish heart of Lady Bazelhurst beat rather rapidly as she hastened back to the window to peer anxiously out into the somber park with its hooting owls and chattering night bugs. The mournful yelp of a distant dog floated across the black valley.

The watcher shuddered as she recalled stories of panthers that had infested the great hills. A small feeling of shame and regret began to develop with annoying insistence.

An hour dragged itself by before she arose petulantly, half terrified, half annoyed in spite of herself. Her husband still was sitting in the big chair, his face in his hands. His small, dejected figure appealed to her pity for the first time in the two years of their association. She realized what her temper had compelled her to say to him and to his sister. She saw the insults that at least one of them had come to resent.

"I hope that foolish girl will come back," she found herself saying, with a troubled look from the window. "Where can the poor thing go? What will become of her? What will every one say when this becomes known?" she cried, with fresh selfishness. "I—I should not have let her go like this."

Even as she reproached herself a light broke in upon her understanding; a thought whirled into her brain, and a moment later a shrill, angry, hysterical laugh came from her lips.

"She knew where she could go! How simple I am. Shaw will welcome her gladly. She's with him by this time—his doors have opened to her. The little wretch! And I've been trying so hard to pity her." She laughed again so shrilly that his lordship stirred and then looked up at her stupefied, uncertain.

"Hello!" he grunted. "What time is it?"

"Oh, you're awake, are you?" scornfully.

"Certainly. Have I been dozing? What's there to laugh at, my dear?" he mumbled, arising very unsteadily. "Where's Pen?"

"She's gone. She's left the house," she said, recurring dread and anxiety in her voice. A glance at the dark-romantic room! No, he won't. He'll understand. He'll help me on to Pittsburg tomorrow. But will he think I'm actually throwing myself at his head? No, I can't turn back. I'd rather die than go back to that house. It won't matter what he thinks. I'll be away from all of it tomorrow. I'll be out of his life, and I won't care what he thinks. England! Goodness! What's that?" She had turned a bend in the drive, and just ahead there was a light. A sigh of relief followed the question. It came from the lantern which hung to a stake in the road where the new stone gate posts were being built by workmen from town. Bazelhurst Villa was a quarter of a mile, through the park, behind her; the forest was ahead.

At the gate she stopped between the half finished stone posts and looked ahead with the first shiver of dismay. Her limbs seemed ready to collapse. The flush of anger and excitement left her face. A white, desolate look came in its stead. Her eyes grew wide, and she blinked her lashes with an awed uncertainty that boded ill for the stability of her adventure. An owl hooted in mournful cadence close by, and she felt her hair was going straight on end. The tense fingers of one hand gripped the handle of the traveling bag, while the other went spasmodically to her heart.

"Oh!" she gasped, moving over quickly to the stake on which the lantern hung. The wind was rushing through the treetops with increased fervor, the air was cool and wet with the signs of rain, a swirl of dust flew up into her face, the swish of leaves sounded like the splashing of water in the air. Holding her heart for minutes, she at last regained some of the lost composure. A hysterical laugh fell from her lips. "What a goose! It was an owl, and I've heard hundreds of them up here. Still, they do sound different outside of one's own room. It's going to rain. What wretched luck! Dear me, I can't stand here all night! How black it is ahead there! O-o-h! Really, now, it does seem a bit terrifying. If I only had a lantern it wouldn't be so—" Her gaze fell upon the laborers' lantern that clattered aimlessly, uselessly, against the stake. An instant later she had jerked it from its fastenings with a cry of joy. "I'll send it back when they go for my trunks. What luck!"

Without a second's hesitation she started off briskly into the woodland road, striding along with the splendid swing of the healthy Englishwoman who has not been trained to dawdle. Her walking skirt gave free play to her limbs. She was far past the well known "line in the road" before she paused to take a full breath and to recapitulate. Her heart beat faster, and the sudden glow in her cheek was not from the exercise. Somehow, out there alone in the world, the most amazing feeling of tenderness sped on ahead to Randolph Shaw. She tried to put it from her, but it grew and grew. Then she blushed deep within herself, and her eyes grew sweet with the memory of those stolen, reprehensible hours along the frontier. Something within her breast cried out for those shining, gone by moments, something seemed to close down on her throat, something

to the haunted house. Ghosts, wights and hobgoblins fell into the process of pursuers, cheered on by the stirring wind that grew more noiseless her feet carried her higher up mountain. Now she was on ground. She had never before explored so far as this. The hill was st and the road had black abysses beyond its eeds.

She was breathless, half dead fatigued and terror, when at last feet stumbled up the broad steps leading to his porch. Trembling, she s into the rustic bench that stood aga the wall. The lantern clattered to feet, and the bag with her jewels, letter of credit and her curling irs slid to the floor behind the bench. E was his home! What cared she for storm?

Even as she lay there gasping breath, her eyes on the shadowy mist that was breaking its way through clouds, three men raced from the bles at Bazelhurst Villa, bent on finding the mad young person who had the place. Scarcely knowing what reaction he took, Lord Bazelhurst the way, followed by the duke and count, all of them supplied with carriage lamps, which at any other time would have been sickening in their obtrusiveness. Except for Lady Evelyn the rest of the house slept the si of ease.

Gradually Penelope recovered from the effects of the mad race up the hill. The sputtering flame in the lantern called her into action. Clutching from the floor of the porch, she so began a tour of inspection, first looking at her watch to find that it was the unholy hour of 2. Had someone yelled "Boo!" she would have swooned, so tense was every nerve. Now that she was here, what was she to do? Her heart came to her mouth, hand shook, but not with fear; a nervous smile tried to break disaster the concern in her eyes.

The house was dark and still, one was stirring. The porch was covered with rugs and cushions, while on a small table near the end stood decanter, a siphon and two glasses. Two? He had said he was alone except for the housekeeper and the servants. A visitor, then. This was what she had expected. Her heart was sank. It would be hard to face master of the house, but—a strange cigarette stubs met her bewildered troubled gaze—many of them. Death was easy out there in the long night. It was easy to see that she and his companion sat up so late the servants had gone to bed.

Distracted she looked about for means of shelter on the porch until daylight could abet her in the flight the village beyond. The storm was sure to come at no far distant time. She knew and feared the violence of the mountain rains.

"By all that's holy," came in a man voice, low toned and uncertain, isn't a dream, after all!"

She turned like a flash, with a startled exclamation and an instinct movement as if to shield herself from unbidden gaze. Her lips parted, her heart pounded like a hammer. Standing in the doorway was Randolph Shaw, his figure looking up like a monstrous, wavering genie in the certain light from the shaking lantern. His right hand was to his brow, his eyes were wide with incredulous joy. She noticed that the left sleeve of his dinner jacket hung limp and the arm was in a white sling beneath

"You ran away?" he exclaimed, coming toward her. "Oh, it can't be a

She was a pitiable object as she stood there, powerless to retreat, shaking like a leaf. He took her by the shoulder.
"Yes, it is you. Good Lord, what does it mean? What has happened?
How did you come here? Are you alone?"

"Utterly, miserably alone! Oh, Mr.
Shaw!" she cried despairingly. "You will understand, won't you?"

"Never! Never as long as I live. It is beyond comprehension. The wonderful part of it all is that I was sitting there dreaming of you—yes, I was.
I heard some one out here, investigated and found you—you, of all people in the world. And I was dreaming that I held you in my arms. Yes, I was.
I was dreaming it!"

"Mr. Shaw! You shouldn't!"

"And I awoke to find you—not in my arms, not in Bazellhurst Villa, but here—here on my porch."

"Like a thief in the night," she murmured. "What do you think of me?"

"Shall I tell you—really?" he cried.
The light in his eyes drove her back a step or two, panic in her heart.

"N—no, no—not now!" she gasped, but a great wave of exaltation swept through her being. He turned and walked away, too dazed to speak.
Without knowing it, she followed with hesitating steps. At the edge of the porch he paused and looked into the darkness.

"By Jove, I must be dreaming," she heard him mutter.

"No, you are not," she declared desperately. "I am here. I ask your protection for the night. I am going away —to England—tomorrow. I couldn't stay there—I just couldn't. I'm sorry
I came here—I'm—"

"Thank heaven, you did come," he exclaimed, turning to her joyously.
"You are like a fairy—the fairy princess come true. It's unbelievable! But —but what was it you said about England?" he concluded, suddenly sober.

"I am go-going home. There's no place else. I can't live with her," she said, a bit tremulously.

"To England—at once? Your father —will he—"

"My father? I have no father. Oh!"
with a sudden start. Her eyes met his in a helpless stare. "I never thought. My home was at Bazellhurst castle—their home. I can't go there.
Good heavens, what am I to do?"

CHAPTER VII.

"They are after me!"

LONG afterward she recalled his exultant exclamation, check-ed at its outset—recalled it with a perfect sense of understanding.
With rare good taste he subdued whatever it was that might have struggled for expression and simply extended his right hand to relieve her of the lantern.

"We never have been enemies, Miss Drake," he said, controlling his voice admirably. "But had we been so up of the big living room he turned to her,

a look of extreme doubt in his eyes.
"By Jove, I bet I do wake up. It can't be true." She laughed plaintively and shook her head in humble self abase-ment. "Don't be lonesome. I'll be back in a minute."

"Don't hurry," she murmured apologetically. Then she settled back limply in the wide couch and inspected the room, his footsteps noisily, clattering down the long hallway to the left. She saw, with some misgiving, that it was purely a man's habitation. Shaw doubtless had built and furnished the big cottage without woman as a consideration. The room was large, comfortable, solid. There was not a suggestion of femininity in it—high or low—except the general air of cleanliness.
The furniture was rough hewn and built for use, not ornamentation. The walls were hung with English prints, antlers, mementoes of the hunt and the field of sport. The floor was covered with skins and great "carpet rag" rugs. The whole aspect was so distinctly manly that her heart fluttered ridiculously in its loneliness.
Her cogitations were running seriously toward riot when he came hurriedly down the hall and into her presence.

"She'll be down presently. In fact,
so will the cook and the housemaid.
Gad, Miss Drake, they were so afraid of the storm that all of them piled

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

IF you have ever fumed and fussed, because of dirt and grime and rust, and said unto yourself, "Oh, dear! This household work will kill, I fear"—then it is time that you should find some other method far more kind.

Of all the woes a housewife bears, one always fills her day with cares: The kitchen after-meal-time muss, is quite enough to make one fuss. What, with the pots and pails and pans, the knives and forks and plates and cans, no task of man, however grim, the half as mean is handed him.

Two little willing workers aim to enter in this household game: their job, the lessening of work, a task that neither of them shirk. With active little hands and brains they grab the irksome household reins, till soon each kettle, pot or dish, is just as bright as you could wish. And not until the chores are done, from sink to silver, sun was breathless, half dead from fear and terror, when at last her stumbled up the broad steps leading to his porch. Trembling, she sank to the rustic bench that stood against wall. The lantern clattered to her and the bag with her jewels, her of credit and her curling irons to the floor behind the bench. Here is home! What cared she for the?

as she lay there gasping for breath, her eyes on the shadowy moon was breaking its way through the trees, three men raced from the statue Bazehurst Villa, bent on finding mad young person who had fled lace. Scarcely knowing what dinner to be, Lord Bazehurst led away, followed by the duke and the all of them supplied with car-lamps, which at any other time I have been sickening in their siveness. Except for Lady Evele rest of the house slept the sleep of death.

dually Penelope recovered from effects of the mad race up the hill, sputtering flame in the lantern led her into action. Clutching it to the floor of the porch, she softly took a tour of inspection, first looking at her watch to find that it was the holy hour of 2. Had some one said "Boo!" she would have swooned. Tense was every nerve. Now she was here, what was she to do? heart came to her mouth, her shook, but not with fear; a nervous smile tried to wreak disaster to concern in her eyes.

"You will understand, won't you?" she asked simply.

"And no questions asked," he said from the doorway. Still she held back, her gaze going involuntarily to the glasses on the table. He interpreted the look of inquiry. "There were two of us. The doctor was here picking out the shot, that's all. He's gone. It's all right. Wait here and I'll get a light." The flame in her lantern suddenly ended its feeble life.

"Dark as Egypt, eh?" he called out from the opposite side of the room.

"Not as dark as the forest, Mr. Shaw."

"Good heavens, what a time you must have had. All alone, were you?"

"Of course. I was not eloping."

"I beg your pardon."

"Where were you sitting when I came up?"

"Here—in the dark. I was waiting for the storm to come and dozed away, I daresay. I love a storm, don't you?"

"Yes, if I'm indoors. Ah!" He had struck a match and was lighting the wick of a lamp beside the huge fireplace.

"I suppose you think I'm perfectly crazy. I'm horrid."

"Not at all. Sit down here on the couch, please. More cheerful, eh? Good Lord, listen to the wind! You

Seven Ways of Spelling "E."

Dealing with some objections to spelling reform Mr. William Archer told the Society of Shorthand Teachers in London that there was not a single letter in the English language to which only one sound was attached, nor was there a sound which was represented by only one letter. If they took the "e" sound in "bed," they, he said, would find it spelled seven different ways in as many different words, for exactly the same vowel sound occurred in "head," "mangy," "leopard," "said," "says" and "pepper." When a child asked why "proceed" and "recede" were not spelled in a similar way, nobody could possibly give him a reasonable answer.

The word "sovereign," Mr. Archer said, was so spelled today because of its supposed connection with the word "reign." As a matter of fact, there was no connection between the two and the proper spelling was that which Milton used—i.e., "soyran."—London Spectator.

Systematic Birds.

"Doubtless," said the professor of natural history to the returned traveler, "you have picked up many strange bits of information regarding the animals and birds of the countries you have visited."

"A few," answered the traveler. "The most interesting thing I ever heard, however, was a story I got in Africa. It seems that a year or so ago a representative of a rubber stamp house went through there and lost his sample case, containing all kinds of office stamping apparatus. It appears that some ostriches found his sample case, broke it open and swallowed the samples."

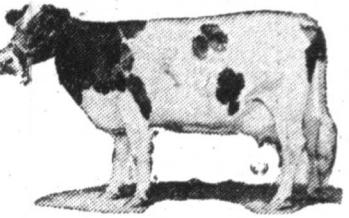

"I see nothing odd about that. Ostriches will eat anything."

"Yes, but now every ostrich egg that is found there is seen to be numbered and dated!"—London Tit-Bits.

SILAGE ALONE NOT A BALANCED RATION

The only use for ensilage I have ever had has been with dairy cattle. I always aimed to balance my ration, writes W. L. Raymond in the Iowa Homestead. While ensilage is an excellent food, it is not profitable to feed it alone, as it does not contain enough protein or bone, hair, milk and muscle building material. In fact, it runs high in only one of the several essential elements which go to nourish and build up the animal structure, and that is fat. Corn is a fat forming food, and ensiling it does not change its nature in the least.

In order to balance silage or get the entire benefit to be derived therefrom

GRADE LAMBS FOR FALL FATTENING

To buy lambs soon after weaning and turn them out to graze on stubbles and pastures and eventual the cornfields is a good practice which should prove profitable, writes Pickering Rose in Farm and Field. At all events, it is the cheapest best way to get rid of the weet to improve the land.

Success will greatly depend on lambs bought. Some one may say course mine are just 'grades,' go and indifferent." And it is just point that danger seems to the. Of course you will buy none but of one of the mutton and wool breeds—Shropshire, Hampshire or Southdown—and the nearer you can come to getting all of one type and breed the you will be of getting their full value, for the buyers always pay attention to the even looking kind. It is well to bear in mind that a few lambs in a bunch of good ones is always used as a pretext to pull the price, while a few good ones in a poor lot have no power to raise the price of the whole. It is therefore

In nearly all cases the beginner in dairying should start with grade cows, says Professor Nichols of the Kentucky Agricultural college. On the whole, large, rangy, deep bodied, deep chested, big bellied cows, carrying good, capacious udders, give best results. When fresh such cows ought to give from three to five gallons of milk a day testing 3½ to 4½ per cent fat. Cows of Holstein blood are more persistent milkers and do not fatten so rapidly as do Shorthorns. The Holstein cow here pictured is Aralia De Koi, a pure bred Holstein. She produced 28,000 pounds of milk in one year.

it must be fed with food which runs high in protein or the element in which silage is most deficient. With my dry cows and young stock I found clover hay, which may be raised successfully on the same farm which raises the corn, with perhaps a little grain, to give very good results, as this runs high in protein. Alfalfa is still better, as it runs as high in protein as bran, ton for ton. I found alfalfa hay and silage to be all that was needed, with no grain, to make fast and good growth on young stock. With large producing cows or cows giving over twenty pounds of milk a day some grain, being balanced as to protein and fat the same as roughage, was required to keep up the milk flow and body weight of the animal.

Silage may be balanced with bran, oilmeal, cottonseed meal, oats, peas or any grain which runs high in protein, but any of the legumes, such as clover, alfalfa, pea hay, etc., are better for the mechanical effect. Silage, like grass, is loosening, and, while this is very beneficial to a certain extent, the effect is controlled by feeding a little dry matter, and this we get in the hays I have mentioned as well as the elements in which the silage is short.

Build with Concrete

It is the most economical material for every kind of farm building, for it requires no repairs, never wears out and never needs painting. Dairy stables of concrete are clean and sanitary. They keep the herd warm and comfortable in winter, and tend to increase both the quantity and quality of the milk.

Whether you build a stable, silo, spring house or other farm building, concrete is the cheapest material to use.

CARE OF SICK ANIMALS.

Medical Equipment Should Be Kept on Every Farm.

Every dairyman who keeps even a small herd will find it convenient to have the following medical equipment: A clinical thermometer should always be at hand, and the herdsman should know how to use it. It can be got through any drug store or from any firm dealing in veterinary instruments. The normal temperature of mature cows are from 99 to 102 and may reach as high as 103 F. Two or three milk tubes of different lengths, a trocar and canula, a long neck pint or quart bottle for drenching, a milk fever outfit or a bicycle pump, a large syringe or funnel and three feet of small, rubber hose, and one graduate or measuring glass should be provided. Remember, milk tubes should always be sterilized by heat or a disinfectant before using.

The following medicines should be kept on hand. One pound bottle crystallized carbolic acid, five pounds epsom or gauze salts, one pint castor oil, one gallon linseed oil, creolin, vaseline, carbolized vaseline, acetate of lead (sugar of lead), flowers of sulphur, hydrogen peroxide, one pint tincture of gentian. Dissolve the carbolic acid oil by placing the bottle in warm water and add a very small amount of water to keep it in solution. Make the carbolized vaseline by adding to a pound of vaseline less than one-half ounce of the dissolved carbolic acid; then warm and stir thoroughly while cooling. Other medicines may be added and even needed, but these should always be available.—Iowa Homestead.

Indigestion In Pigs.

Little pigs sometimes suffer from indigestion, and worms may be present. Physic them with castor oil in milk, and then feed milk with an additional one ounce of lime water per pint. When they can hold that down gradually thicken with middlings and cornmeal. If worms pass in the droppings give the pigs two dram doses of fluid extract of pink root and senna in a little water every three hours until scouring is caused. It seldom pays to fuss with a thrifless, stunted pig.

Feeding For Pork.

The best hams and bacon, the sweetest and best of all meats, must contain a streak of lean and a streak of fat from pigs fed upon milk, wheat feeds and grass with a little corn. Increase the corn as the pigs grow, and the last six weeks before killing feed all the corn they will eat up clean twice a day.

Give the Pigs a Run.

Is it any wonder that pigs lose their thrifless and constitution and become weak in the back with crooked legs when they are confined in an 8 by 10 pen that is cleaned but once a year and then only when the owner has time? Stop and figure the losses that result from pigs that do not do well and are squalling when they want to be comfortable and contented. The chances are all they need is the run of a nice clean pasture where they can leave their droppings to the benefit of the soil.

day and resuming it a month you propose to ship them. If you oats you can put them to no better than to feed them to your lambs a little bran or oilmeal. You want lambs to run over seventy-eighty pounds by November, and should be fat and well finished at weights by then.

FEEDING THE PIGS.

When Youngsters Begin to Eat a Separate Trough!

Thrifty, growing pigs will at the of three weeks begin to try to shorts stop with the mother. To separate pen or creep where the cannot reach their trough should be provided for them, says H. L. Cot the Kansas Farmer. Here they can fed twice a day, feeding only amount as they will clean up. troughs must not get sour from mated feeds. The troughs must be shallow. Young pigs climbing on six inch side to get feed from trough are in danger of rupture.

Pigs correctly cured for are ready to be weaned at eight or ten weeks. They thrive better when separated into bunches of fifteen or twenty and the feeder can more easily observe each individual. Crowd the pig in growth and at nine months he will weigh the scale at 275 to 300 pounds or thereabouts.

Exclusive corn diet produces fat, gainly and ill developed hogs. A diet with corn should go shorts stop alfalfa. I feed wood ashes, charcoal and salt also. These are preventives of disease and promoters of health. About twice a week I feed the government hog tonic. This is an excellent tonic and keeps the hog free from greatest enemy—worms. Beware of the majority of remedies and foods. Mix brains with the hog feed.

Flaxseed For Calves.

Ground flaxseed meal may be fed to young calves in several ways. It is quite common to pour boiling water over it and cook it for a short time making the mixture about the consistency of good cornmeal mush. To a calf with young calves may be fed about a teaspoonful of the flaxseed meal in gradually increasing to about a tablespoonful. This may be mixed with milk. It is advocated by some of the best feeders that the raw flaxseed gives just as good results if mixed with the milk, and the danger of the seed becoming sour by mixing with water is eliminated.—Hoards' Da man.

The Milkman Needs Rest.

The dairy cow should be rested between lactation periods. If she refuses to dry up of her own accord some method of getting her dry so she can have a little chance to build up her next milking period.

Hog Cleanliness.

The hog enjoys clean surroundings and comfort in his buildings just much as the hen or the horse or cow, and the best way to get the results is to furnish him with this kind of comfort. This doesn't necessarily mean pampering; it means just common sense care.

The Profitable Cow.

There is one kind of stock that never a drug in the market—the friesian milk cow. She costs less to raise and sells for more than a beef steer.

cess will greatly depend on the bought. Some one may say, "Of mine are just 'grades,' good, bad and indifferent," and it is just at this that danger seems to threaten. If you will buy none but grades of the mutton and wool breeds—Shire, Hampshire or Southdowns—the nearer you can come to buying of one type and breed the surer will be of getting their full market value for the buyers always pay most to the even looking lots. It is to bear in mind that a few poor in a bunch of good ones is also used as a pretext to pull down price, while a few good ones in a lot have no power to raise the of the whole. It is therefore far Shropshire sheep are popular in country as well as in England, and they are one of the best breeds known for mutton production. In appearance the sheep is well proportioned and built on symmetrical lines, being compact in form. The wool is close and longer than that of many other breeds. Specimens of this breed have been made to weigh 225 for the male and 175 for the female, and the meat is of excellent flavor. As a bearer of lambs the sheep surpass the Shropshire.

YOUNGEST PRINCE OF HESSE.

Children of the Landgrave of Hesse Noted For Good Looks—Games and Riddles For Little People—The Barnyard Ladies.

Not long ago a newspaper in Germany conceived the idea of printing the pictures of the children of the many royal families of that empire and asking its readers to decide by a voting contest which were the prettiest. After the votes were all in and counted it was found that the children of the Landgrave of Hesse had received the verdict. There are four of these children, three boys and a girl. Prince Ernest, whose picture is shown, is the second son. He was born in July, 1900. He has a sister, Irene, six years old, and a brother not yet three. His oldest brother, William, is only nine. If they are all as pretty as Ernest they are a handsome lot, but all the beautiful children do not live in Germany. We have a great many on this side of the water.

WHEN BAKING CAKE.

When making cakes or biscuits remember the following points:

Your oven must be properly heated. Cakes require a moderate oven and biscuits a hot oven.

Every cake should be well beaten for four or five minutes immediately before it is put into the oven—that is to say, after the last of the ingredients has been added to the mixture. As soon as you have finished beating you should put your cake into the oven. Never allow it to stand about or it will be spoiled.

The plainer your cake, the more rising agent it will require. A rising agent is anything in the nature of baking powder or soda. Rich cakes which contain many eggs and much butter do not need anything of this description.

FOR THE DANCER.

Care of the Feet That Will Keep Them in Good Condition.

You will enjoy a dance ever so much more if when dressing you wash your feet in very hot water. Rub these well with methylated spirit, allowing it to dry on. Then take a cake of soap, moisten it slightly and rub the heels well with this, and also the ball of the feet and across the joints of the toes.

After doing this you will have perfect comfort through the evening and the feet are never swollen or blistered next day.

From a man who dances for a living and is practically on his feet twelve hours of every twenty-four comes the following advice:

Change the shoes at least three times from rising until retiring, the stockings at least twice, and keep the feet absolutely clean. To be clean they should be bathed three times each day.

Use soap only in the morning, other times merely warm or hot water. After drying rub carefully with a good talcum powder. Twice a week rub the entire foot with vaseline. White is best. Oil of sweet almonds is also soothing. No other care is necessary unless there are old troubles to contend with. Less care, and trouble may result.

HANDMADE GARTERS.

They Are a Chic Note in Milady's Lingerie Outfit.

Dainty handmade garters are a part of the smart woman's lingerie outfit. Some have garters to match or harmonize with each of their various sets of underwear. The garters are of the same color as the ribbon used in the lingerie, which also is in a tone similar to that of the gown.

A pair of ribbon garters which are a little out of the ordinary can be made in this way: Cover the elastic with yellow satin ribbon, which should be just wide enough to reach over the elastic when folded. The two edges of the ribbon are overhanded together

FREE OF ALL THREE DISEASES

"Fruit-a-tives" Brought Him Perfect Health

AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913.

"I am younger since I have been taking "Fruit-a-tives". I was troubled very badly with Piles, Constipation and Stomach Disorder, but I found "Fruit-a-tives" was the panacea for the whole three.

Now I am free of all these diseases and enjoying perfect health, and able to work whenever I like. Five years ago, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I took two every night and they worked wonders for me.

No other medicine I could get was so good and I took lots of different remedies before I found out how good "Fruit-a-tives" were.

I keep "Fruit-a-tives" on hand all the time, and am never without them. I even take them with me when I go motoring, so I can have them handy. "Fruit-a-tives" are worthy of every good word I can say about them. The fact that they cured me of Piles, was something to be everlastingly thankful for."

COMFORTABLE FOOTWEAR.

Common Sense Should Be Used in the Selection of Shoes and Stockings.

Stockings should be half a size large to accommodate the foot as it spreads with the weight upon it, and for the same reason the shoe should be of pliable material. Black in both hosiery and shoes gives the best effect, but since colors are in vogue it is wise to compromise on plain colors and plain weaves.

For those whose feet are irritated by silk there are cotton footed silk stockings. White footed hose are preferable to either. All cheaper grades of hosiery should be washed in soda and water before being worn.

Shoes properly fitted will hold the feet in a firm grasp with the pressure uniformly distributed. The sole will be just broad enough to serve as a foundation. The heel will be of moderate height and placed beneath the end, not the middle, of the foot. A run down heel is unendurable—and unsafe.

It is a mistake to buy shoes longer and narrower than the foot in order to make the latter appear slender, for the ball of the foot, where there is greatest breadth, is forced out of place and into the narrowing toe. It is equally a mistake to wear shoes too large, for the shifting about of the foot will cause callouses and blisters. Shoes, like other apparel, should fit so perfectly that the wearer is not reminded of their presence.

Puffs For the Purse.

Little crocheted powder puffs are the latest novelty for the purse. They can easily be made at home.

Crochet two circular pieces about the size of a silver dollar out of mercerized cotton of any shade desired. Care-and resuming it a month before propose to ship them. If you grow you can put them to no better use to feed them to your lambs with the bran or oilmeal. You do not let lambs to run over seventy-five to fifty pounds by November, and they will be fat and well finished at those dates by then.

FEEDING THE PIGS.

Youngsters Begin to Eat Provide a Separate Trough.

Fifty, growing pigs will at the end three weeks begin to try to eat at slop with the mother. Then a rate pen or creep where the sow or reach their trough should be ideal for them, says H. I. Cottle in Kansas Farmer. Here they can be twice a day, feeding only such meat as they will clean up. The pigs must not get sour from accumulated feeds. The troughs must be low. Young pigs climbing over a inch side to get feed from the trough are in danger of rupture.

Pigs correctly cared for are ready to wean at eight or ten weeks of age. They thrive better when separated into bunches of fifteen or twenty, the feeder can more easily observe individual. Crowd the pig in his trough and at nine months he will top scale at 275 to 300 pounds or better.

Inclusive corn diet produces fat, healthy and well developed hogs. Along corn should go shorts slop and far. I feed wood ashes, charcoal salt also. These are preventives of disease and promoters of health. Twice a week I feed the government hog tonic. This is an excellent and keeps the hog free from his best enemy—worms. Beware of majority of remedies and stock. Mix brains with the hog feed.

Flaxseed For Calves.

Good flaxseed meal may be fed to young calves in several ways. It is common to pour boiling water over it and cook it for a short time, making the mixture about the consistency of good cornmeal mush. To start young calves may be fed about a spoonful of the flaxseed meal mush, gradually increasing to about a tablespoonful. This may be mixed with

It is advocated by some of the feeders that the raw flaxseed meal just as good results if mixed with milk, and the danger of the flax becoming sour by mixing with rye is eliminated.—Hoards' Dairyman.

The Milkmaker Needs Rest.

A dairy cow should be rested between lactation periods. If she refuses to dry up of her own accord use method of getting her dry so she has a little chance to build up for next milking period.

Hog Cleanliness.

A hog enjoys clean surroundings and comfort in his buildings just as the hen or the horse or the and the best way to get the best is to furnish him with this kind of comfort. This doesn't necessarily pampering; it means just common sense care.

The Profitable Cow. There is one kind of stock that is a drug in the market—the fresh cow. She costs less to raise and for more than a beef steer.

We have a great many on this side of the water.

The Blue Grotto.

The Blue grotto is a famous cave on the island of Capri, near Naples. It is about 170 feet long, 100 wide and 40 high and is reached from the sea by a narrow arch in the limestone cliffs. The water within resembles, according to one eyewitness, "liquid sapphire" and glitters with a pale blue light.

Walls and roof of the Blue grotto are ultramarine in color.

The general blue tone of the place is said to be caused by the refraction of the sun's rays in passing through the water in the cave. The opening of the grotto is so exceedingly small that the light that enters must first pass through the waters.

A stay of at least twenty minutes is necessary to accustom oneself to the light in the Blue grotto.

A Generous Dog.

A clergyman had a favorite Newfoundland dog, which was allowed to run about the house. He had also a sporting dog, which was usually kept chained up in a stable. The Newfoundland procured his food in the house and was well fed. He seemed to think that the dog in the stable was not quite so fortunately placed, and he would frequently take a large bone, jump over the gate which divided the yard of the house from the stable yard and carry the bone to his companion.

Riddles.

Why should the number 288 never be mentioned in company? Because it is too gross.

What can pass before the sun without making a shadow? The wind.

When is a turkey like an English poet? When it is browning.

What relation is the doormat to the scraper? A step farther (father).

Barnyard Ladies.

Cock-a-doodle do!
The mare has lost her shoe,
And Mrs. Pig has bought a wig,
As all the ladies do.

She says, "I'm now in style,"
With a piggy-wiggy smile,
While all the barnyard folk
Consider her a joke.

But never, never mind,
Mrs. Pig, if they're unkind.
Why shouldn't you, my dear,
Wear a curl behind each ear?

Mrs. Hen will wear a comb
Wherever she may roam.
Though it's funny, I declare,
When she hasn't any hair!

And the horse will answer neigh
When you offer him some hay.
Now, it doesn't seem so queer
You should want a wig, my dear.

Looks to me as though the joke
Was on the other barnyard folk.

over the top of the elastic, the ribbon being put on full enough to lie in folds around the elastic.

After the elastic is covered make a buckle by covering a piece of cardboard with shirred ribbon and on either side of the buckle have two loops of the ribbon, making a very stiff tailored bow. Fasten to one side of the ribbon elastic.

In place of the buckle a wreath of ribbon or chiffon rosebuds may be substituted.

If you have a friend who is a bride to be send her a pair of the exquisitely pretty garters that are offered in the shops. Three styles are illustrated here, two trimmed with silk flowers and one studded with rhinestones.

Oddities In Entertaining.

We live in a day of unusual entertainments—at least in a time when the unusual method of entertaining is at a premium.

Dancing at restaurants at tea time and dinner time and supper time is established. At some of the cabaret shows the audience is invited to practice the steps danced by the professionals on the stage.

Some society people not long ago went from Chicago to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras with a freight car fitted up for dancing attached to their private car.

An aviator's dinner, given in honor of some successful flyer, was called an upside down dinner and began with dessert and ended with soup.

Children's Hats.

Straw hats of all sorts will be worn by children, but silk hats will be worn, too, and straw and silk will be combined. One popular hat shows a straw brim of tan chip, with a crown of darker crepe de chine. Three little feather birds of brown and yellow are arranged lightly on the right side of the straw band that holds in the fullness of the silk puff at the bottom. Two of the birds are on silk covered wire and they hover in humming bird fashion above the dainty hat.

rectly that the wearer is not reminded of their presence.

Puffs For the Purse.

Little crocheted powder puffs are the latest novelty for the purse. They can easily be made at home.

Crochet two circular pieces about the size of a silver dollar out of mercerized cotton of any shade desired. Carefully sew them together, leaving small openings through which to pour in the powder. Fill the bag full with the powder, so that it will sift through easily when patted gently on the face. Then make a pretty edge around the circular piece by crocheting a few rows of plain chain stitch, each added row to be caught into the middle of the preceding one, which gives a sort of ruffle effect. An opening can safely be made by cutting a stitch or two when it is necessary to refill the puff.

EAST INDIAN MAGIC.

The Clever Dry Sand Trick and the Way It Is Performed.

A very clever trick often seen in India is the following, which is known as the "dry sand trick."

The faqir brings forward a pail, which he proceeds to fill with water. He then shows some ordinary sand, quite dry. To prove its dryness he takes up a handful and, blowing sharply upon it, scatters it in all directions. He then takes up another handful and drops it into the water. We can all see it lying in the bottom of the pail under the water. Next, showing his hands empty, he places one in the pail and brings out a handful of the sand. Blowing upon it, it still scatters in all directions, showing it to be as dry as ever. This is repeated several times until all the sand is again extracted.

This clever trick is performed in the following manner: Fine, clean sand is selected, washed carefully in hot water several times and dried in the sun. Some of this sand is then placed in a frying pan with a lump of fresh lard and is cooked until all the lard is burned away. The result is that every particle of sand is covered with a thin coating of grease, so that when this sand is dropped into the water it remains dry.—Scientific American.

Four Footed Poultry.

A certain old man in the Wynchope settlement named Bickley was exceedingly fond of "big words." He was riding his horse over the country one bright spring day, apparently intent on some important business.

Whenever he met anybody he gravely asked: "Have you seen anything of any stray poultry today? I've lost mine and am hunting it." When they told him "No" he would proceed on his way.

After spending several hours in what seemed to be a vain search he at last rode up to the door of a farmhouse and called, "Hello!" A lady came to the door, and, doffing his hat very politely, the old man inquired if she had noticed any stray poultry around?"

After a moment's thought the woman told him she had seen no chickens.

"Oh," he replied, "it's my hogs that I've lost, not my chickens."—Youth's Companion.
